

Perot in; race now 3-way showdown

Associated Press

ALLAS — Ross Perot plunged Tuesday into the presidential race Thursday, setting the stage for a three-way struggle with President Bush and Bill Clinton over the final month of the campaign. "The government is a mess," Perot said. "The Texas billionaire said he was joining the race because 'neither major political party has effectively addressed' economic and other concerns that are on the minds of the voters. 'We gave them a chance; they didn't do it,' he said of his rivals. He made his remarks at a news conference 11 weeks to the day after he announced he would not run. He said at that time he believed he could not win and did not want to be a disruptive influence on the campaign. He didn't address the likelihood of victory in his announcement speech before family, friends and reporters in his home state of Texas. Instead, he looked beyond the election, pledging to dedicate himself to solving the nation's problems and by rallying the public to the cause. "Looking forward, working together, we can fix anything," he said.

Perot once had support rivaling that of Bush and Clinton in the public opinion polls. His backing dwindled through a series of spring controversies and he now runs a distant third in polls.

His entry has the effect of injecting uncertainty to a race that Clinton has led consistently since July.

Perot cast his announcement as a deferential bow to the volunteers he said had urged him to reconsider his earlier refusal to run. However, spending reports filed with the government indicate he has spent millions since his nominal withdrawal to maintain a political infrastructure and make sure his name was placed on all 50 state ballots.

He reportedly has 20 or more television commercials ready to go and said with a smile as he left his news conference: "Got to make a living, got to pay for ads."

Bush declined to answer questions about Perot as he arrived at the White House from Camp David in advance of the Texan's comments. Clinton, campaigning in Wisconsin, said, "I'm going to run my race" regardless of Perot. "I think my fight is with George Bush."

Clinton said he got into the race "because I believed we couldn't afford four more years of George Bush and trickle-down economics. I still believe I have the best economic plan."

Perot said his fight was with both parties, and a political system that has allowed the economy to deteriorate.

"We've got to put our people back to work," he said. To rejuvenate the economy, Perot has prepared a detailed plan to cut the deficit, including a mixture of higher taxes and spending cuts.

He added, "Our people are good; the American people are good, but their government is a mess."

Perot was accompanied by his wife Margot and the man tapped to be his vice presidential running mate. Retired Adm. James Stockdale is a former Vietnam prisoner of war and a Medal of Honor winner.

U.S. carrier's missiles hit Turkish ship

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A U.S. aircraft carrier accidentally struck a Turkish destroyer with a missile fire Thursday during a NATO exercise in the eastern Mediterranean, setting the vessel on fire and killing at least seven crew members, Pentagon officials said.

Initial reports indicated at least 15 others were injured aboard the Turkish ship, said a Pentagon spokeswoman, Maj. Katherine Ingram.

She said there were no reports of U.S. Navy casualties.

The aircraft carrier, the USS Saratoga, launched two Sea Sparrow missiles and apparently hit the Turkish destroyer with both missiles, officials said.

Ingram said one missile hit the bridge of the Turkish vessel, an area of the ship that controls navigation.

A fire broke out but was extinguished in 15 minutes, the spokeswoman said.

Crewmen from the Saratoga were dropped onto the stricken ship by helicopter to help with the rescue.

A multinational contingent of ships in the region also rushed to the vessel's aid.

The Turkish ship was not immediately identified, and it was not known how many crew members were aboard.

U.S. Navy officials have been dispatched to the Turkish ship to assess damages and injuries to Turkish allied crew.

"It was an accidental launching," Ingram said. Both ships were taking part in "Display Determination," an annual NATO exercise consisting of vessels from the southern NATO region, the Pentagon said. The exercise usually involves the United States, Turkey, Greece and Italy.

Pentagon spokeswoman Maj. Katherine Ingram said the accident occurred about midnight local time (4 p.m. MDT). There was no immediate word on casualties.

"Both ships were taking part in a NATO exercise."

The 1,063-foot Saratoga is a conventionally powered aircraft carrier commissioned in 1956. It was among the first class of carriers designed specifically to launch jet aircraft.

It is equipped with at least two types of missiles. It was not known which type was involved.

Classes in religion won't be pass/fail

By CHARLIE GIDDLEY
Senior Reporter

Religion classes will not be graded on a pass/fail basis, but will continue to use letter grades.

"We feel that we should continue a traditional grading system in Religious Education," said the Religious Education Administrative Council in a Sept. 24 statement.

"Pass/fail seems to suggest the possibility that religion courses are not as significant as G.E. courses or major courses," said Robert L. Millet, dean of religious education and head of the council.

The possibility of changing to a pass/fail system had been discussed for several months. Some people in the BYU community thought religion classes were too academic, and some thought they weren't academic enough, calling BYU religion professors "overgrown Sunday school teachers," Millet said.

According to the statement, the council believes "religion courses are not hurdles to leap over or hoops to jump through, not something to get behind us so that we can move on to the important stuff of the university. Any student or faculty member who so supposes does not understand the primary mission of this institution."

A pass/fail system would encourage mediocrity, the council said. "If a student is told that all he/she needs to do is attend class a certain percentage of the time and then do a minimal amount of work to pass or receive credit, then that is all many of the students will do."

Victor L. Ludlow, associate professor of ancient scripture, agrees with the council's decision.

"I think it's good as long as a teacher doesn't grade on a curve," Ludlow said. "I think it's actually in harmony with the gospel for a religion professor to expect high standards of learning and writing and analyzing from his or her students."

Having a grading system in place can help students learn how to excel, he said.

"We're not grading on testimony or righteousness or faithfulness, although we encourage (students to develop those things)," he said.

Susan Easton Black, professor of church history, also agrees. "I'm definitely in favor of keeping the grading system as it is," she said.

In the statement, the council addressed various concerns, including the idea that competition is not conducive to the Spirit and is un-Christian, grading religion classes adversely affects grade point average and grading "results in exams that focus on minutiae and trivia."

Ice cream parlors swamped after Saturday conference; banana splits most popular

By MARK NEWMAN
Universe Staff Writer

Ice cream parlors along the Wasatch Front report their busiest nights of the year are the two Saturday evenings coinciding with the General Conference of the LDS Church.

"We can tell when the priesthood session lets out," Hunter Radinger, Fendall Ice Cream owner, said. "It looks like we have most of the Tabernacle here."

Tyler McBride, Carousel Ice Cream spokesman, said, "An hour after the session, we've had about 100 or 600 people come in. We get about half that on a normal Saturday."

Most parlors interviewed reported that their sales on General Conference Saturday evenings were at least 25 percent higher than other Saturday nights.

Several parlors said banana splits are the most popular item sold after the Priesthood session.

"They want to splurge and get something with lots of toppings on it. The kids' dads and grandfathers tell them to just go for it," Brian Alldredge, Snelgroves supervisor, said.

Extra employees are scheduled to handle the crowd. "We can't increase the seating, so we try to increase the turnover rate," Doug Cooley, Leatherby's Family Creamery owner, said.

"It's a fun night because everyone comes to help," McBride said. "Both owners are elbow-deep, scooping ice cream right next to the employees."

Tactics have been developed to avoid inevitable lines. "We get mothers who come in 15 minutes before the session lets out and stake out a table," Cooley said.

Long hiring evaluation required for Y professors

By CLAUDIA ARGUETA
Universe Staff Writer

More than 90 new professors are hired at BYU each year and all must undergo a long evaluation process, said Betty Aleman, secretary to Clayne Pope, associate academic vice president.

Debbie Peterson, secretary to dean of humanities, said the hiring process is a standardized procedure used throughout the university.

Pope said the main areas of interest when reviewing an applicant are teaching ability, research, creative work, and service to community and church.

Clayton Huber, dean of the College of Biology and Agriculture, said a department search committee is organized when a teaching position becomes available in a particular college.

"The search committee advertises in national journals to solicit applicants," Huber said. Advertisements are also placed in BYU Today.

Cecil Clark, professor of education, said the department search committee presents the most qualified applicants to the department. These applicants are voted on and ranked by the department, Clark said.

Peterson said the university then pays for the top two applicants to visit BYU.

A. Keith Lawrence, professor of English, said he gave presentations to the English Department staff and to graduate students during the hiring process.

Christopher Lund, a new Portuguese professor, said he taught some classes while faculty observed when he visited.

"I liked the caliber of the students and their inquisitiveness during the class," he said.

Clark said after applicants are interviewed by department personnel, a recommendation is given to the university.

Peterson said the applicant is then interviewed by administration officials.

Clark said the university committee makes the ultimate decision.

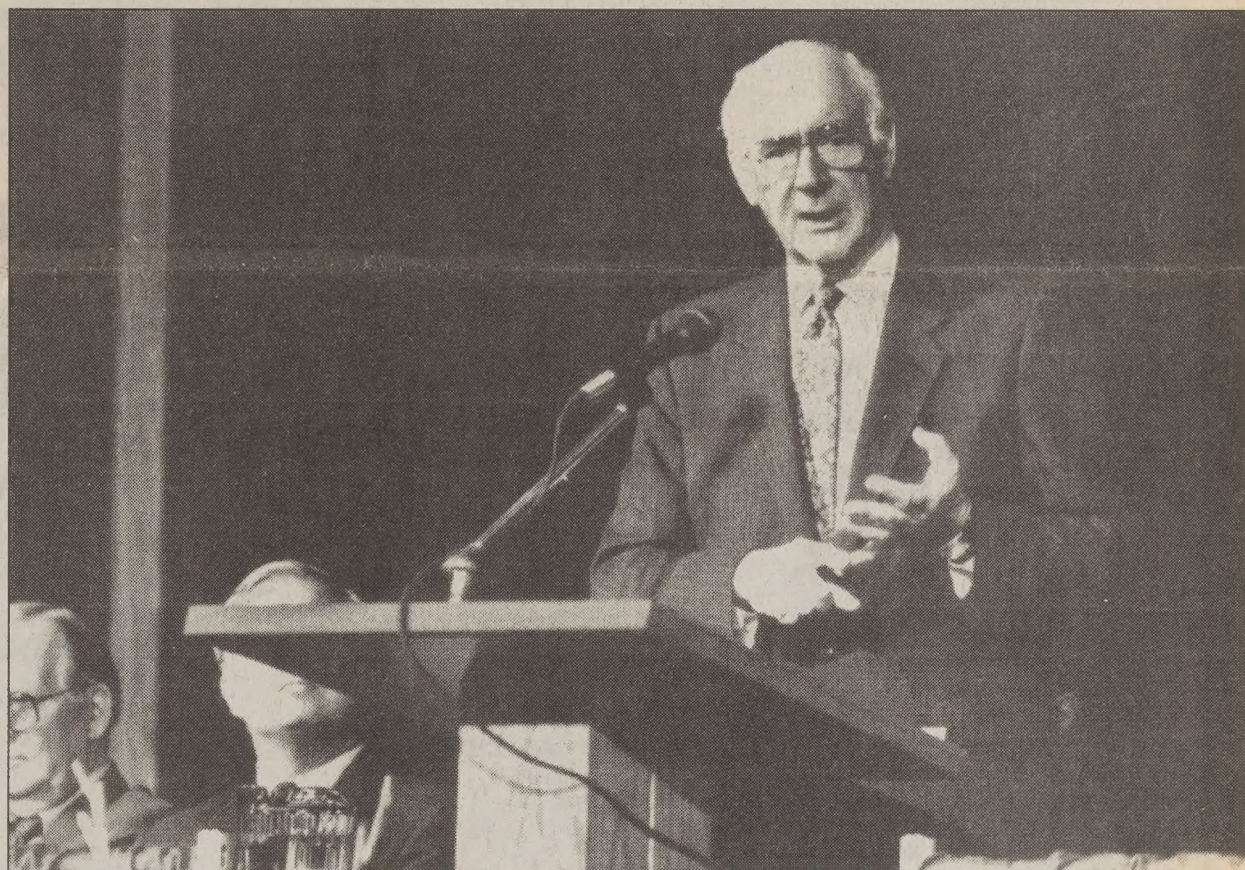

Aleman said applicants must present three reference letters and an ecclesiastical reference.

Clark said the last step in the applicant's evaluation is an interview by a general authority.

Lund said, "I heard the interview would be a real rake over the coals, but it wasn't for me."

Dr. JoAnn Valenti, professor of communications, said she enjoyed her interview with Elder Adney Y. Komatsu.

"My interview was delightful. I am not a member of the Church and had no idea what an elder was. He was impressive, friendly, and reassuring," she said.

Andrus slams Bush's record, says Clinton can help nation

By MATTHEW S. FRANCK
Universe Staff Writer

Gov. Cecil Andrus, D-Idaho, told BYU students Thursday that if elected, Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton would help "guarantee a sound future" for the nation by ensuring job security and working to improve the quality of life for all citizens.

Andrus attacked President Bush's record on issues such as the deficit and unemployment.

"It's a record of economic decline and a record of personal despair for all Americans," Andrus said, adding that the Bush administration has created fewer new jobs than any other presidency in the last century while neglecting a growing deficit.

Andrus said the most important issues this election year are mirrored in the campaign rhetoric "change and values." "Values shape the very way we attempt to tackle the problems that face our world," he said.

He said one of the most fundamental values is the ability to hold a job and provide for a family. Andrus said creating jobs is not enough; a president must also work to create a higher standard of living by improving education, reducing crime and protecting the environment. Andrus said Clinton's record as governor of Arkansas shows he is qualified to face those challenges and, with the strength of a Democratic Congress behind him, create change. He said last year manufacturing jobs were created in Arkansas at a rate ten times greater than the national average.

Andrus said protecting the environment is crucial to ensuring the quality of life. Andrus, who served as Secretary of Interior under President Carter, said recent administrations have ignored environmental problems by pretending they don't exist.

Cougar-Aggie series tied at 32-32-3; rivalry more intense for Utah State fans

By BRETT JEWKES
Universe Sports Writer

Nine straight BYU victories have evened the BYU-Utah State University series at 32-32-3 and all but killed the feeling of rivalry Cougar fans have for the annual game. But in Logan, the rivalry lives on.

This week in practice, Aggie head coach Charlie Weatherbie gathered his team together and asked, "Who here has beaten BYU?" Only Weatherbie, who quarterbacked Oklahoma State to two bowl wins over BYU, and a couple of assistant coaches who played or coached at WAC schools, were able to answer positively. "By far this is (our) biggest game. People around here go crazy about this game because it's an in-state game and because it's BYU," said Greg Watts, Aggie flanker and a Logan native.

Aggie kicker Doug Beach, a former Logan High School all-stater, said, "I think winning the BYU game means a whole lot to the community. It's a big one — one I would like to win."

"We'd rather win the BYU game than any other conference game and we feel that if there's a year to do it, this is it," said Byron Allen, 24, a USU senior from Logan. Allen said among students at USU, the BYU-USU rivalry is much more important than USU's rivalry with Utah.

"It's not an anti-LDS thing because the majority of USU students are strongly LDS," said Roger Griffin, a BYU law student and a USU graduate. "It's just that people at USU don't like the arrogance of BYU. There's an attitude that they're (BYU) better than anyone else and it's kind of nauseating."

The Aggies' last win in the series came in 1982, a 20-17 win at Romney Stadium in Logan. Griffin said the long run of futility against BYU has fostered feelings of frustration and made many fans expect to lose the annual contest. Watts said Weatherbie has done a lot to change those feelings since taking over for the departed Chuck Shelton last December.

Nu Skin 'restructures' upper division

Provo-based Nu Skin International laid off about 5 percent of its corporate-headquarters work force while promoting four other executives to vice president positions in a company restructuring move announced Thursday.

About 45 positions were eliminated from an estimated 900 employees housed in the Nu Skin tower, said Jan Hemming, manager of media relations for the company. Nu Skin employs about 2,400 people worldwide, not including its network of distributors.

Steve Lund, executive vice president, said, "We feel that this restructuring will have a positive effect on our abilities to meet competition in our world-wide markets."

Hemming said most of the layoffs involved middle managers and staff positions. "Those positions would tend not to be BYU students," she added.

The cuts involved multiple areas of the company. "They're across the board," Hemming said. "They affected every department."

Nu Skin has also centralized its distribution facilities over the past year and a half, reducing the number of buildings owned from 15 to three.

Unemployment up for 5th straight week

WASHINGTON — A widely watched barometer of American industry dipped back into recession territory in September while the number of Americans filing first-time claims for unemployment benefits rose for a fifth straight week and commercial construction activity plunged to the lowest level in eight years.

Analysts said the batch of dismal business statistics Thursday showed that the already weak economy stumbled further at the end of summer.

The bond market rallied on all the bad news, believing that the Federal Reserve will be forced to cut interest rates for the 25th time since 1989. Many expected the Fed's next rate cuts could come as soon as Friday following release of an unemployment report that is expected to show the jobless rate jumped last month, perhaps back up to an eight-year-high of 7.8 percent.

Arms treaty to shut Cold War door

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Thursday slammed the door on the Cold War by easily approving the most complex nuclear arms treaty ever written, then voting for millions in aid to promote democracy in Russia.

As Congress rushed to complete its work before abandoning Washington for the campaign trail, lawmakers also played out veto fights with President Bush on abortion and arrived at a compromise on defense spending.

Approval of the Strategic Nuclear Arms Reduction Treaty came on a vote of 93 to 6, belying the decade of distrust and struggle that dominated its negotiation. In some ways, the treaty is an anachronism. The country it was negotiated with — the Soviet Union — no longer exists, but four independent republics, Russia, Ukraine, Belarus and Kazakhstan, have assumed the treaty responsibilities.

And while the document calls for the two sides to cut their nuclear arsenals by about one-third, work is already progressing on deeper cuts, made possible by the evaporation of superpower tensions.

Fuel program to lower air pollution

PROVO — An oxygenated fuel program that begins Nov. 1 should make a sizeable dent in the amount of carbon monoxide emitted into Utah County's air, officials say.

Gasoline stations throughout the county will dispense oxygenated fuel — gasoline blended with either ethanol or methyl tertiary butyl ether — from Nov. 1 to Feb. 29.

The compounds increase the oxygen content of fuel, causing it to burn more completely and thus reducing carbon monoxide emissions.

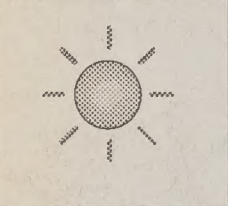

The Division of Air Quality estimates the program will reduce carbon monoxide emissions from vehicles in Utah County by 15 percent to 20 percent.

Utah County is one of 39 areas in the United States required by the Clean Air Act amendments of 1990 to start oxygenated fuel programs this winter. Next winter, Salt Lake, Davis and Weber counties are to begin oxygenated fuel programs.

The federal health standard for carbon monoxide is 9 parts per million. The Environmental Protection Agency lists the Provo-Orem area's carbon monoxide value at 15.8 parts per million, in the moderately severe category.

Conflict emerges between officers of SAC, BYUSA

By MARCI BEEKE
Universe Staff Writer

The President's council, including the Student Advisory Council representatives and other officers, met Tuesday for their first monthly meeting to assess their goals, voice their problems and concerns as well as identify ways to integrate volunteers into the organization.

Scott Tiffany, spokesman for BYUSA, said the meetings should prove to be very helpful. "In the past, officers have felt like there wasn't much contact with the presidency — and there really wasn't. By having a meeting where everyone is invited to speak their mind, we hope to change that," Tiffany said.

Some of the problems addressed were how to improve orientation and training of BYUSA officers, how to make SAC a stronger division of BYUSA and the use of university bulletin boards for enhancing campus programs.

As it is, SAC members feel there is a lack of support from the main office of BYUSA. They feel it is due to the separation of power between the officers of SAC and BYUSA. SAC discussed ways in which they could become a more obvious part of BYUSA.

Tammie Quick, Associate Dean of Student Life, defined the problem as a lack of communication between the two groups.

The problem could also be found in defining the objectives of both groups as being one and the same. They have found that students regard the two organizations separately, yet the intentions of both groups should be unified in the eyes of the students.

As a branch of BYUSA, SAC members feel they should have equal rights and opportunities. As the situation stands, not only are they unsure of their privileges as a branch, but some say they feel unwelcome and ill at ease on BYUSA's main floor; so much, in fact, that it was suggested BYUSA officers call SAC officers to specifically invite them to meetings and activities sponsored by BYUSA.

SAC members feel computers, phones, office space and other resources that are available to BYUSA officers are not readily available to them.

BYUSA members said SAC members are not required to spend as much time on the floor, so they don't have as great of a need for these materials.

BYUSA has first priority for 19 campus bulletin boards for advertising and enhancing campus activities, socials and meetings directly associated with student life at BYU.

Yet BYUSA's efforts tend to be hidden by all the clutter that is found on the boards. Quick encouraged BYUSA to tear down any off-campus, non-approved advertising to make room for BYUSA-sponsored events.

'Here's Brother Brigham' to kick off BYU Homecoming celebrations

By LISA GROVER
Universe Staff Writer

Brigham Young is coming to campus Oct. 6 as part of the Homecoming/Founder's Day celebration.

James Arrington will present a one-man show about the life and times of Brigham Young.

Arrington, popular for his one-man shows throughout the Intermountain West, will present "Here's Brother Brigham," which was originally performed in 1976, said Charlene Winters, Feature Editor for BYU Public Communications.

Winters said the play is especially suited for Arrington's talents. "This is his tour-de-force one man show."

The show was created as part of Arrington's work for his master's thesis. It was a natural choice for this year's Homecoming theme: "Forever Young," Winters said.

Material for the play was gathered from diaries, letters and speeches from Brigham Young. Brigham Young speaks directly to the audience, quoting the prophet directly for much of the play, Arrington said.

Arrington also uses artifacts from Brigham Young's life, including a pair of glasses that belonged to Brigham Young, Winters said.

Gaelynn Kuchar, Executive Directors' Department Secretary at the Alumni house, said the theme, "Forever Young," was chosen by the Homecoming Executive Committee as part of a new tradition of honoring past University presidents.

"The celebration honors Brigham Young and the Young family. There will be a family home evening on Oct. 5 and other activities throughout the week," Kuchar said.

Arrington, famous for other one-man shows like "The Farley Family Reunion," said the show is conversation-like in style.

James Arrington will bring Brigham Young to life when his one-man show, "Here's Brother Brigham," plays Oct. 6 and 7 in the JSB Auditorium.

"It is as if Brigham Young is there, and you simply ask him to tell you about his life," Arrington said.

Arrington's play presents Brigham Young as a more friendly character than most people believe.

"Many of our beliefs have anti-Mormon roots," Winters said. "This looks beyond the stereotypes."

Arrington described Brigham Young as "a humorous man who enjoyed mild sarcasm and irony."

"Brother Brigham" will be presented Oct. 6 and Oct. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the JSB Auditorium.

Tickets are available at the Harris Fine Arts Center ticket office.

BYU barbers say they're a dying breed

By DOLLY DORIUS
Universe Staff Writer

With a snip here and a snip there, barbers throughout the nation keep busy all day. However, barbers may be a dying breed.

Dan Thomas, a barber at the BYU Barbershop, said, "They don't even train barbers anymore. Maybe someday barbers will be resurrected, but I doubt it."

Thomas and Kyle Probst started working in the BYU Barbershop in September 1964. Since then, cosmetologists have become the new trend, Thomas said.

"Cutting men and women's hair has become an interchangeable profession," he said.

Tammi Hull, 20, a student at Bon Lossee Academy of Hair Artistry, said there are no more strictly barber schools or cosmetology schools. Now they are combined.

"It used to be girls were cosmetologists and guys were barbers, but now you can go to any man and he can give a perm or dye hair," Hull said.

Thomas said he won't cut women's hair.

"It's not the same thing; they end up looking like men," he said.

Thomas said he enjoys working with people. He started working in the BYU Barbershop 29 years ago when a friend told him BYU was opening a shop.

Cannes Festival provides Cinema with year's best foreign films

By LISA GROVER
Universe Staff Writer

Traveling to France is just part of BYU International Cinema Director Don Marshall's job. But he wasn't seeing the sights -- he was watching foreign films.

BYU's program gathers films from several different sources, including the famous Cannes Film Festival in France, Marshall said.

The festival, at the famous resort on the French Riviera, was described by Roger Ebert, noted film critic, as "... the movie industry's annual trade fair."

During his two-week stay in Cannes, Marshall sees about 100 films, averaging almost eight films per day.

Because he has to assimilate such a vast amount of film in such a short time, Marshall has developed a special note-taking system to help him remember details and facts about every film he sees.

Marshall said he judges the films he sees on the basis of quality and appropriate subject matter, noting that, contrary to popular opinion, foreign films usually contain less questionable subject matter than American films.

The International Cinema is not just for students to attend as a class requirement. Some students may think they will be bored by a movie in a foreign language or with divergent subject matter. However, the International Cinema program has a film series aimed directly to entertain.

"There are three series of films this semester. The 'Film as Entertainment' series is very accessible and easy to like," Marshall said.

Marshall also said International Cinema viewers should expect something different from the entertainment offered in commercial theaters.

"People should expect to be open-minded, to go in to learn and come away with something. Everyone will get something different from what they see," Marshall said.

BYU's International Cinema features the top movies from around the world, making BYU's cinema program bigger than any other university in the country, said Warren Jones, the International Cinema secretary.

Jones attributes the success of the program to the students of BYU. "BYU has a lot of broad-minded students. They are all at least willing to experiment."

International Cinema is available to students in language and Humanities. Other students are required to pay $1 for admission for an Cinema schedules are posted side the International Office in the Jesse Humanities Building.

Y seeks to return to winning ways

By JUSTIN ROWLEY
Universe Sports Writer

BYU will try to stop a three-game skid tonight against in-state rival Utah State in Cougar Stadium.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:05 p.m. The Cougars (1-3) are looking for their first lead in a series that began in 1922 and is now tied 32-32-3. BYU will also attempt to extend their win streak against the Aggies (1-3) to 10 games.

In last year's game, also at Cougar Stadium, the Cougars exploded for 38 points before Utah State got on the board. BYU led only 3-0 after the first quarter but scored 21 second-quarter points on a Ty Detmer run and touchdown catches by Tyler Anderson and Brad Clark.

For the third week in a row, a key for the Cougars' top-ranked WAC defense (see The Record Book) will be stopping the running game of their opponent.

Against New Mexico State last week, the Aggies racked up 307 yards rushing and were led by Abu Wilson, who has 157 yards. The Cougars shutdown Utah State's running game like last year (84 yds).

Junior Anthony Calvillo, who threw for 207 yards and two touchdowns last week in his first start, will guide the Aggies again Friday.

Another key for the Cougars this week will be getting on the scoreboard early. BYU has failed to score in the first half of their last two games and have played catch-up during much of the last three.

For the third time in three games, BYU will start a new quarterback. Sophomore Ryan Hancock will receive his first start after a gutsy performance against Hawaii where Hancock threw for 383 yards and two touchdowns. Head coach LaVell Edwards said Hancock "was a very good leader" last week. "He went out there and took charge of the huddle and took charge of what was going on."

Last year, BYU gained 241 yards on the ground against the Aggies, while passing for 381 yards. Running back Kalin Hall is expected to return to the lineup this week to contribute to the Cougar's running game.

Universals: BYU was also 1-3 when they met USU in 1991, then went 8-0-2 the remainder of the season The Cougars had to win 12 of the last 13 meetings with the Aggies to knot the series The Aggies last won in Provo in 1978 (24-7) BYU leads the WAC in total defense, allowing 345 yards per game USU is second in the Big West in that category, allowing 361.8 yards per game Eric Drage is seventh in the nation in receiving yards, averaging 105.5 yards per game He is eleventh in scoring, averaging nine points Quarterback turmoil aside, BYU is still ranked fifth in the nation in passing offense with 324 yards per game.

Men's tennis squad to open season

By LARRY D. ALLEN
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's tennis team plays their first match of the season at Northern Arizona University Saturday. The match features two of the nation's top players facing off.

The Cougars are anticipating a strong team this year as they enter this week's match against NAU. BYU finished in fourth place last year in the Western Athletic Conference.

Mark Quinney (48) and NAU's Michael Tebbutt (16) were both nationally ranked last year and will meet for the first time Saturday.

Both Quinney and Tebbutt played in the National Clay Court Championships, a tournament featuring the top players in the country. Tebbutt's loss in the finals could earn him a top-10 ranking to begin the season.

"We are going to be real good. We have the best depth since I have been at BYU," tennis coach Jim Osborne said.

The Cougars return top seeds Quinney, a senior, and junior Herman Vandecasteele. Marco Pacheco and Micah Rideout should make big contributions this year.

NCAA penalizes Syracuse hoop squad

Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The NCAA penalized the Syracuse basketball program Thursday, banning the Orangemen from 1992-93 postseason play and placing the school's entire athletic program on two years' probation due to violations in the women's basketball, football, lacrosse and wrestling programs.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions stopped short of banning Syracuse from live television appearances, but did assess scholarship and recruiting penalties.

"But for their cooperation, their penalty would have been much greater," said David Swank, dean of the University of Oklahoma Law School and chairman of the infrac-

Lakers sign Magic for $14.6 million

Associated Press

Magic Johnson signed a $14.6 million one-year contract extension with Los Angeles Thursday, the largest single-season salary in team sports.

The deal guaranteed Johnson $19.6 million through the 1994-95 season. Johnson already was under contract for 1992-93 and 1993-94 at $2.5 million per year.

Johnson retired Nov. 7, 1991, after he was diagnosed as HIV positive. The deal surpasses the $9.4 million average of New York's Patrick Ewing.

"The extension has nothing to do with Tuesday's announcement and is something that we were going to do even if he didn't come back to play," Lakers general manager Jerry West said.

Men's cross-country team runs Saturday

By SCOTT G. CLARK
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's cross country team will be in Boulder, Colo., participating in Saturday's Rocky Mountain Shootout.

This will be the second race of the season for the Cougars, but the first scored meet. BYU had a strong showing at the Autumn Classic with Dave Spence, Jason Pyrah and Harvey Franco finishing in the top three positions.

Spence and Pyrah will not go to Boulder with cross country coach Sherald James. "We've decided to redshirt Spence this season, but he will run for the track team in the spring," James said. "Pyrah" is preparing for pre-nationals," James said.

Women's x-country in Stanford meet

By AMY KUNZ
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU Women's cross country team travels to Palo Alto, Calif. this weekend to run in the Stanford Invitational.

The meet is considered the largest in the western United States.

Arkansas won the invitational last year and is expected to repeat. However, coach Patrick Shane said BYU has a chance to do well in the elite race. BYU won the meet in 1990 and placed 3rd last year.

Tonya Todd will lead the team in the meet.

Cougars, Utes to host Wasatch Invitational

Cal Poly State San Luis Obispo and the University of Texas-Arlington round out the tournament entries.

The Cougars take on Texas-Arlington Friday at 5 p.m. while the Utes play Cal Poly SLO at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night the guests swap courts. BYU faces off with Cal Poly SLO at 8:30 p.m. and Utah is slated against Texas-Arlington at 8 p.m. Each of the BYU matches will be played in the Smith Fieldhouse while the Utah hosted games will be in E-101 HPER on the Utah campus in Salt Lake City.

BYU (8-3, 1-0) is in the midst of a seven match winning streak and are ranked 11th nationally. Tea Nieminen leads the WAC in kills (5.46 pg). Charlene Johnson leads the WAC in assists (13.36 pg).

Brett contemplates future after collecting 3,000th hit

Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — George Brett almost called it quits more than 100 hits shy of the milestone.

Now that the Kansas City Royals' star has his 3,000 hits, the big question is how much longer he'll play.

"I don't know," Brett, 39, said after he got four hits in his first four at-bats against the California Angels on Wednesday night to become the 18th major leaguer to reach the 3,000-hit plateau. "I want to enjoy this for a while and go back to Kansas City."

Discouraged earlier this season when he was hitting .150 and the Royals lost 16 of their first 17 games, Brett considered retiring right then and there. But Kansas City manager Hal McRae, among others, talked him out of it.

Two considerations will figure heavily in his decision for next year and beyond: whether he believes he can still play at a high level, and whether he believes he will still enjoy the game.

"I know I'm not the player I was five years ago or 10 years ago. But I still think I can help this team win some ballgames, and I still think I can play better than most players. But at the same time, I don't want to out there and embarrass myself."

The Royals have a $2.5 million option on Brett's contract for next season, with $1 million buyout, but they haven't indicated their plans.

"It's not as much fun as it was from 1976 through 1985."

Brett could be elected to the Hall of Fame, a prospect greatly enhanced by reaching the 3,000-mark. But it is not Brett's present concern. "I haven't thought about it," he said. "Hopefully, with the 3,000 hits now, I've put another candle on the cake. But it's something that I really have no control over."

After his 3,000th hit, Brett made a rare mental mistake.

"I was talking to (Angels first baseman) Gary Gaetti, telling him about my family being here and everything, and all of a sudden I thought, 'Ah, shoot, I'm picked off,'" Brett said.

"When I went out for the next inning, I told Gaetti, 'Hey, G-man, you didn't let me finish my sentence.'"

Relations between U.K., Germany worsen

Associated Press
LONDON — The slide of the pound has brought Britain's relations with Germany to the lowest postwar periods. "We are now seeing not only the conduct of the British government but of the president of the community descending into humiliation and chaos," said Labor Party leader John Smith. Major said Germany "has made it clear they regret the publication of the document and I am happy to accept that expression of regret."

the European Community. The principal strain between Germany and Britain is money. British anger is often laced with references to Nazis, in what many see as a disturbing revival of historic animosities the European Community was supposed to bury. The anti-German rhetoric has also been fueled by an underlying fear of the might of unified Germany. Britons were offended by German plans to celebrate the V2 rocket, which killed thousands of British civilians in World War II. "Humiliated economically and frightened politically, we return to the war years," wrote Times of London columnist Bryan Appleyard, after Princess Diana recently decided to swap her Mercedes-Benz for a British car. The German ambassador, Baron Hermann von Richthoven, was summoned Thursday for a 25-minute meeting at the Foreign Office over a Bundesbank statement that denied any role in the slide of the British pound. The statement, published in the Financial Times newspaper, included a strong rejection of British complaints that the German central bank had encouraged a Sept. 16 run on the pound by hinting the currency was overvalued.

The government-run Bank of England claims the leak of the Bundesbank document was a breach of protocol. Von Richthoven made no comment as he left the Foreign Office. The first sign of trouble was at a Sept. 5 meeting of EC finance officials. The Bundesbank president, Helmut Schlesinger, was reportedly upset by Britain's pressure to lower German interest rates. The pound and other EC currencies have suffered because the high rates make the mark more attractive.

Germany was further irked by Major's statement that he would remove parliamentary consideration of EC union plans if a Sept. 20 referendum failed in France. French voters narrowly supported the treaty.

Britain was upset that the Bundesbank failed to help prop up the pound. London's complaints grew after Germany stepped in late last month to buy up French francs to keep that currency from falling. The latest Bundesbank statements have brought British-German relations to one of their lowest postwar periods. "We are now seeing not only the conduct of the British government but of the president of the community descending into humiliation and chaos," said Labor Party leader John Smith. Major said Germany "has made it clear they regret the publication of the document and I am happy to accept that expression of regret."

Efforts open center for children's justice

By TANALEE S. OAKES
Universe Staff Writer

More than one year of political efforts, donations and love culminated in the opening of Utah County's Children's Justice Center Wednesday, with a ribbon symbolically cut by a group of community children.

Contributions of time, materials and money paid for the new home and were used to renovate the residential house into an office for the center.

"Every single bit of this home is privately donated by individuals, organizations and corporations," said Laura Blanchard, director of the Children's Justice Center.

In October 1991 a bill was passed in the Utah Legislature allowing the organization of three justice centers for children.

Weber County and Salt Lake County were included in the original pilot program, with Utah County being added only after the efforts of Senator Craig Peterson's interim judiciary committee.

"We recognized an idea whose time was right — an idea which had to happen," Sen. Peterson said.

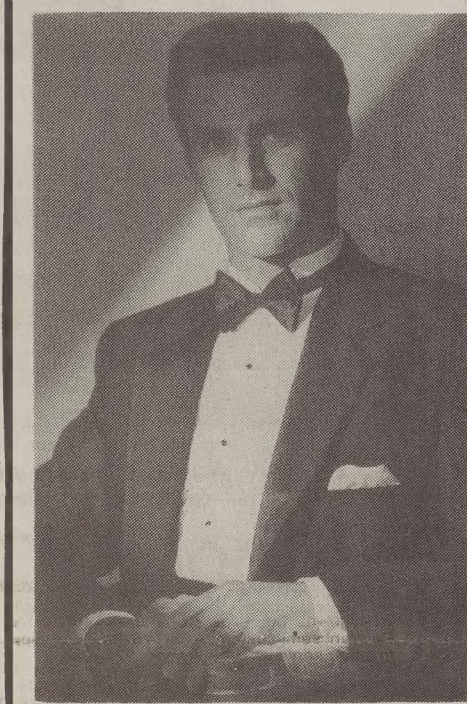

Michelle Peterson, Office Manager at the center, said that the purpose of the center is to organize child abuse agencies and to make sure no cases get left behind or dropped.

The center deals with severely physically or sexually abused children, Peterson said. Access to local funds, therapy and treatment for child abuse victims are handled at the center, she said.

Interviews by lawyers, police officers and therapists are all conducted at the center.

Roses, letter introduced as evidence in Jiron trial

By JAMES L. AHLSTROM
Universe Staff Writer

The opening week of the Joe F. Jiron murder trial brought testimony from both sides, one trying to convince the jury that Jiron is a victim and the other claiming he is a calculating killer. Jiron is charged with murdering his ex-wife, Shelly Ann Jiron.

One medical technician testified Joe told her he wanted to die. Deputy Utah County Attorney James R. Taylor, trying to show motive on Joe Jiron's part, introduced a letter from Shelly Jiron's boyfriend. A Lehi emergency medical technician testified the letter was found near Shelly Jiron's naked, partly burned body.

Shelly was found last Dec. 17 inside a car with Joe west of Utah Lake on State Road 68. Shelly was dead, Joe was unconscious.

Carma Carver, Shelly's mother, testified she saw Shelly's boyfriend write the letter and leave it for her with roses. Carver said Shelly had the letter and roses with her when she left with Joe Jiron on Dec. 16 — the last time anyone saw Shelly alive.

Defense Attorney Dean Zabriskie said what happened to Shelly was an accident, and Joe was not responsible for Shelly's death. He said Joe suffers from amnesia.

"There's only two people who know what happened that day. One's dead and the other can't remember."

—Dean Zabriskie

"There's only two people who know what happened that day. One's dead and the other can't remember," Zabriskie said.

The majority of the witnesses so far in the trial have been police or county officials testifying to what they saw as they arrived at the site where Shelly's body was found.

Zabriskie has also introduced relatives of Joe as witnesses, attempting to show he was happy and in a normal state of mind prior to Shelly's death.

Taylor, Zabriskie and John Musselman, a co-defense attorney, have agreed not to talk about the trial until the verdict is given by the jury.

Plea bargain in Iraq loan trial thrown out

Associated Press

ATLANTA — A judge threw out a plea agreement Thursday and cleared the way for a trial for a former bank manager on charges of masterminding a scheme to loan Iraq $5.5 billion during its pre-Gulf War military buildup.

A lengthy trial is now expected in the case, which has raised questions about whether the Bush administration covered up its role in arming Saddam Hussein before the war.

Christopher Drogoul, former Atlanta branch manager for Italy's government-owned Banca Nazionale del Lavoro, will be tried on 347 counts of bank fraud. He pleaded guilty in June to 60 counts, but later tried to withdraw the plea, saying he was a scapegoat for BNL.

Drogoul, 43, could have been sentenced to life in prison, fined $17.5 million and ordered to pay $1.8 billion in restitution for the 60 counts.

At a sentencing hearing Thursday, prosecutors reversed themselves and asked U.S. District Judge Marvin Shoob to throw out the plea bargain. Shoob agreed.

"Drogoul cannot have it both ways," said acting U.S. Attorney

Gerrilyn Brill. "He cannot plead guilty, ask the court for a sentence, and project a public image of innocence. There is no middle ground."

The case's change in direction came a day after Drogoul's attorney, Bobby Lee Cook, presented a mysterious document to the prosecution's contentions. Drogoul alone planned the scheme.

Cook presented a document supposedly showing BNL officials sought assurance through a intermediary from then-U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh that the bank wouldn't be implicated

Provo's alternative high school 1st in nation to get new building

By CHRISTY MARX
Universe Staff Writer

Provo's Independence High School is the first alternative high school in America to build new facilities.

The new building for Independence High will be located at 700 N. 1700 West. The scheduled completion is Dec. 18 and classes will begin at the new location after Christmas vacation, said Phil Lott, a business administrator for the Provo City School District.

The new school will include a gymnasium, cafeteria and chemistry room as well as most of the same facilities as a regular high school, Lott said.

The alternative school program began in 1979 in Provo High School, then moved to the old Thorne Construction Company building, and is now at the old Community Press building, Lott said.

The program is designed for students who have problems in regular schools or just get lost among 2,000 students of a regular high school, Lott said. The same requirements for graduation apply as a regular high school, but extracurricular activities are limited.

About 400 students attend Independence High School in day classes, night classes or through the correspondence program. The new building will allow for an average classroom size of 20 students.

"In the past, alternative high schools have always occupied old buildings that are no longer in use, but this is the first alternative school in America to build a brand-new building," Lott said.

Lynn Smith, business administrator for the Provo City School District, said the construction fund for the building and facilities is $3 million. The project is being financed by borrowing through lease revenue bonds that will be repaid over a period of four years from property taxes.
